President’s Message

I invite you to attend the Association of Canadian Archivists (ACA) Conference, held in St. John’s, Newfoundland and Labrador, June 28 - July 1, 2006. St. John’s is a picturesque and attractive site for our Conference and your participation is sure to create lasting memories. “Living on the Edge, the Place of Archives in the Heritage and Cultural Community” is our Conference theme and should lead to interesting discussion. These times of reduced fiscal and human resources, of pressing advocacy issues, and of struggles to raise awareness lead us to meet to create innovative solutions and define how our profession fits within the heritage community.

Our Program Committee, led by Michael Moosberger, has put together an excellent program of more than twenty concurrent sessions over three days and four plenary sessions. Sessions will be led by experts from Newfoundland, the rest of Canada, and from around the world. The roster of sessions and speakers is impressive.

Led by Larry Dohey, the Local Host Committee is sure to have put in place an impressive array of activities. Conference delegates will undoubtedly experience warm hospitality and be exposed to the fascinating history of a most remarkable place. Delegates will be afforded the opportunity to join in social events and tours, which will undoubtedly enhance our awareness and knowledge of this Atlantic province. The archival community in Newfoundland and Labrador is a dedicated and dynamic group and our thanks are extended for their warm welcome and hospitality.

This issue is dedicated to the conference and further information may be found throughout. Our website is an excellent source of information and contains registration and payment procedures. Note the option of online registration and e-payment, a new service for delegates. Information relating to Conference events such as workshops and the Institute is being disseminated via e-mail (ARCAN-L) and our website.

The 2006 ACA Institute, ARCHIVES IN THE WAKE OF HUGH TAYLOR: SHAPING ARCHIVAL PROGRAMMES FOR THE 21ST CENTURY is scheduled in St. John’s, Newfoundland and Labrador, June 26-27, 2006. Inspired by Canada’s premier archival thinker, Hugh Taylor, this Institute offers participants a thorough introduction to new thinking in four areas that are keys to building “bridges” to the future of archival programmes. Drawing on Taylor’s imaginative insights, which launched much of this new thinking, and on the work of many others, the Institute will provide an overview of how archiving could be conceived and done in new ways. Terry Cook and Tom Nesmith will lead the Institute. They are both professors in Archival Studies at the University of Manitoba. Denise Jones and her Education Committee colleagues have done a masterful job in creating a terrific and relevant Institute program.

As part of the Review and Renewal Project (please refer to article in this issue) we have significantly enhanced our Web component. In particular please note the Members Only site, which is provided to improve our service to ACA’s membership. Please visit
Briefing note: Member & Fiscal year change

1. Introduction:
   a) Current Situation: fiscal & member year runs July 1 – June 30,
   b) Both new & renewing members are at times confused by the July 1 renewal date, particularly those renewing in the late winter/spring & attending the conference who are then asked to renew in July,
   c) Financially with the Conference as ACA’s largest event taking place at end of the year, it creates an overload when combining registrations & event logistics with renewals and an audit plus the extra work of expediting completion of all conference-related financial transactions by June 30 or generating a list of outstanding receivables & payables,
   d) In-coming Directors and Chairs begin their terms undertaking 12-month work plans and budgets developed by their predecessors and with limited orientation to their roles.

2. Recommended:
To adjust the definition of financial year & member year to be Jan 1 through Dec 31, annually, effective from Jan 1, 2007, with required submissions to Canada Revenue Agency and Industry Canada, plus appropriate adjustments to ACA documents, i.e. bylaws & forms.

3. Benefits for members & volunteers:
   a) Align to most common timeframe for individual and personal planning,
   b) Matches to tax reporting period for the individual member (e.g. professional fees),
   c) Opportunity for improved alignment between volunteer elections/appointments with roles, i.e. Plans & Budgets responsibilities,
   d) Opportunity for improved orientation & transfer/transition from outgoing to incoming leadership volunteers.

4. Fiscal / operational advantages:
   a) Brings audited statements to members less than 6 months following close of year (currently 11+ months),
   b) Improves distribution of operational workload over 12 months; currently an overload occurs in May – July with conference plus member & subscriber renewals,
   c) Aligns member year & subscription period for publication & financial plans & reports,
   d) Separates timing of conference from fiscal year-end, eliminating need for rapid close & report of revenue & expenses.

5. Benefit for Leadership Volunteers:
   (elections at AGM; 2-yr. term of office Jan – Dec)
   a) Directors elected at the AGM in June would have time e.g. fall P@P, to shadow incumbent to become acquainted with their responsibilities, prior to taking office on Jan 1
   b) Directors & appointed Chairs would have an opportunity to participate with their out-going counterparts in the fall operations, and in the plans & budgets

6. Implementation transition:
   a) To take place at the next change of members & fiscal year, i.e. July 1, 2007,
   b) 6-month year to Dec 31/07, then full years from Jan – Dec '08, and onward,
   c) Offer Members an option to renew for 18 months at rate of 125% or for 6-months at 60% existing 1-year rates.

2006 ACA Institute

“Archives In The Wake Of Hugh Taylor: Shaping Archival Programmes For The 21st Century”.

The ACA is delighted to announce the theme for the 2006 ACA Institute which will be held immediately before the annual conference in St John’s, Newfoundland, on Monday and Tuesday, 26-27 June 2006.

The theme for the 2006 Institute is: "ARCHIVES IN THE WAKE OF HUGH TAYLOR: SHAPING ARCHIVAL PROGRAMMES FOR THE 21ST CENTURY". With Taylor's passing in September 2005, it is appropriate to hold a kind of "wake" for him, to consider archives in his wake, or the legacy for our work today of Canada's premier archival thinker.

The Institute's aim is to integrate new ideas and approaches to a variety of archival tasks into an overall view of how archival programmes may be best conceived and implemented to meet the key challenges we face. The Institute will use Taylor's ideas as a springboard for a discussion of this aim that also draws on a wide range of archival writers and experiences. These challenges affect the day-to-day work planning and service delivery of the vast majority of archives. Taylor tackled these challenges with his imaginative insights and spurred further research into them (for instance, in the areas of contextual description, macroappraisal, electronic records, and relationships with other heritage and information specialists).

In break-out groups, participants will consider the practical workplace challenges that they will have prepared and submitted in advance of the event. Each participant actions with the benefits to incorporate their views and interests in these initiatives.

In St. John's!

LEGAL ASPECTS OF ARCHIVES

Loryl MacDonald
Monday, 26 June 2006
from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland

Do you understand the basis of copyright law as it applies to archival material? Do you know the context in which privacy legislation applies to archival documents? This 1-day workshop will provide an awareness of legal issues that may arise in the course of archival activities, as well as the ethical obligations of acquisition/accessioning, appraisal, and access/reference services. Through presentation and discussion, participants will become familiar with the general structure of the Canadian legal system and with legislative requirements concerning admissibility of archival records as evidence.

WORKSHOP LEADER
Loryl MacDonald has been the Records Archivist at the University of Toronto Archives since 2000. Prior to this, she held contract positions at the Archives of Ontario, the University of Toronto Archives, and York University Archives. She holds a Bachelor of Arts from Simon Fraser University, a Bachelor of Laws from the University of British Columbia, and a Master of Archival Studies from the University of British Columbia. Loryl is also past president of the Archives Association of Ontario and the Toronto Area Archivists' Group. She is currently the ACA Director without Portfolio.

MAKING ARCHIVAL HOLDINGS AVAILABLE ONLINE

Paul Maxner and Lois Yorke
Tuesday, 27 June 2006
from 9:00am to 4:00pm
Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland

The Internet has opened up a wonderful world for making archival holdings available online. Increasingly, researchers appreciate the ability to search archival records and resources without leaving the comfort of their home or office. Expectations are high – so how do we ensure great results? Learn from award winners, Paul Maxner and Lois Yorke of Nova Scotia Archives and Records Management who will guide workshop participants through an interactive session examining key principals for producing successful online virtual exhibits. This 1-day workshop will explore issues around project design and management such as identifying audiences and objectives; selecting themes and content; determining equipment requirements; designing and managing the budget; controlling production flow; anticipating crises. They will explain technologies related to the capture, manipulation and production of archival content online and take a detailed behind-the-scenes look at the NSARM website.

The Online Resources Team responsible for the NSARM website was recently awarded the 2006 Premier's Award of Excellence which recognizes outstanding contributions or achievements, and is the highest honour of the Nova Scotia Civil Service.

AWARENESS AND ADVOCACY

Christina Nichols and Lois Yorke
Tuesday, 27 June 2006
from 1:00pm to 4:00pm
Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland

Advocacy is an opportunity to get involved in social and political decision-making. Take action! By lending their opinions, experience, and expertise to government, the media, and the general public, archivists can be an invaluable civic resource. When the call to action is urgent, getting involved is easy. Your experiences, values, and opinions make an impact - - they become the evidence you present in the public arena to win support to your cause. This 1/2-day workshop, based on the Awareness Kit developed by the Canadian Council of Archives, aims to provide participants with the tools to communicate this evidence to legislators and media.

WORKSHOP LEADERS
Christine Nichols joined the Canadian Council of Archives as Executive Director in 2003. She is a seasoned professional in association management, with extensive experience in business development, strategic planning, finance, communications and marketing. She is a member of ACA, the Canadian Society of Association Executives, and the Government Relations Institute of Canada.

Lois Yorke has spent twenty-five years as an archivist, editor, researcher, writer and consultant in cultural heritage and is currently Director of Public Services at NSARM in Halifax, NS. She is a past president of the ACA, past president of the Council of Nova Scotia Archives, and a recent Board member of CCA.

Canada Day Celebrations

1 July: When the sun rises over Signal Hill, the people of St. John's are the first in Canada to celebrate this country's birthday. There is a sunrise celebration on Signal Hill - dress warmly - as the North Atlantic winds can be chilly! Outdoor entertainment, including multicultural music and dance, caps off the day of birthday celebrations.

Memorial Day

1 July: On 1 July 1916, the first day of the Battle of the Somme, the Newfoundland Regiment, was devastated at Beaumont-Hamel. The next day, only 68 of the 800 men answered the regimental roll call: 255 were dead, 386 were wounded, and 91 were listed as missing. Every officer who had gone over the top was either wounded or dead. This day is sacred in the province to the memory of these young soldiers. A Memorial Service will be held at the National War Memorial, St. John's, as well as in communities across the province. A commemoration will also be part of the ACA Saturday Symposium.

Sound Symposium XIII

7-15 July: A nine-day festival of sound, artistry, exploration and collaboration set in the oldest North American city. Since 1983, the Sound Symposium has gathered some of the top innovative musicians and artists from Newfoundland and Labrador, Canada and around the world to interact, explore, share, and collaborate. Music can be heard everywhere: concert halls, street corners, hills, parks, pubs, WWII bunkers, in the woods and across the harbour. Visit: www.soundsymposium.com/2006/events.html

Harbour Symphony

7-15 July: A Harbour Symphony will echo across St. John's every day at 12:30pm as ships in St. John's Harbour become, in effect, a giant horn section. Plan to take a few minutes to hear this unique composition; the best place to do so is on Signal Hill. www.soundsymposium.com/2006/events.html

Feel the Earth Move: The Gros Morne Project

8 July: An outdoor celebration of dance, music and community in Newfoundland's spectacular Gros Morne National Park. Over 20 of Canada's finest artists (from five provinces) will be in residence in the park. Working in dance, music, film and the visual arts under the guidance of Montréal's Coleman Lemieux & Compagnie, the artists will spend a week in the park community of Trout River, collaborating with local residents and staff of Gros Morne National Park. On 8 July, performances will be held at several park locations (including the geological wonder Green Point), ending with a supper and traditional dance in Cow Head.

The Rising Tide Theatre, Trinity

Ongoing throughout the summer: A professional theatre company (est. 1978) located in Trinity, which performs original Newfoundland and Labrador plays, many based on historical events in the province’s history. The anchor production, The New Founde lande Trinity Pageant, moves the audience through the actual pathways and roads of the community, while transporting them, in dialogue and stories, to previous centuries. Trinity is also home of the Trinity Historical Society Archives, one of the best community archives in the province. Visit http://www.risingtidetheatre.com/

Festival of Folk Song and Dance, Burin

7-9 July. Sponsored by the Burin Folk Arts Council, this annual, indoor event focuses on traditional ballads, music and set-dances of the outport.

July 1, 2006: Memorial Day Commemoration

“...of particular interest were the studio photographs of men...most...were without identification of the individuals..What struck me immediately was the youth of some of the soldiers. They had to have lied about their age...

Kevin Major (1991)

The last day of ACA 2006 – Saturday, 1 July – is Memorial Day in Newfoundland and Labrador. It commemorates the near devastation of the Newfoundland Regiment at Beaumont Hamel on 1 July 1916 during the first day of the Battle of the Somme. In less than 30 minutes, 710 soldiers of the First Newfoundland Regiment were killed, wounded, or missing in action; only 68 men answered the roll call following the battle.

The losses at Beaumont Hamel were not singular. On 14 April 1917, a major offensive at Monchy-Le-Preux resulted in more staggering losses: 166 killed, 320 wounded, 150 captured as POWs. In December 1917, in recognition for their distinguished conduct in battle, the British government bestowed the title “Royal” on the Regiment. Newfoundland and Labrador volunteers also served in other units: the Royal Naval Reserve, the Newfoundland Forestry Companies, the Canadian Expeditionary Force, the Royal Flying Corps, and the Mercantile Marine.

The war had a crippling impact on the social and economic fabric: the volunteers of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment alone suffered a fatality rate of almost 30% percent and a casualty rate of over 70%. The large war debt assumed by Newfoundland was, in part, responsible for the suspension of responsible government in 1934. For more information, visit Newfoundland

Canadian Census Day 2006

Census Day 2006 is scheduled for Tuesday, 16 May. For the first time in the 340 years Census have been conducted in the territory that was destined to become Canada, respondents will be asked to provide consent for the release of information they provide, 92 years after collection. Until now, no such consent was required.

Ensure your place in the history of Canada. On Census Day 16 May 2006, answer YES to allow your information to be made available to your descendants in 2098. Ask everyone you know to do so as well.
In June 1991, Kevin Major, Newfoundland teacher and novelist, visited the Beaumont Hamel Memorial Park in France. As a boy growing up in Stephenville, he had gone to the community war memorial each year on the morning of 1 July with his parents, who recalled the July Drive and relatives who had participated in it. The 1991 visit to Beaumont Hamel included a moving visit to the cemetery, past the rows of Newfoundland and Labrador names, many without gravesites. Based on subsequent research at the Public Records Office, the Imperial War Museum, the Provincial Archives of Newfoundland and Labrador, and the Centre for Newfoundland Studies, Major wrote No Man’s Land, a novel, which covered the 24 hours (30 June-1 July 1916). The finished manuscript was read by Walter Tobin, then the only living survivor of Beaumont Hamel and published in 1995. In 2005, Major published a stage adaptation of the novel.

In commemoration of 1 July, Kevin Major has been invited to deliver the Commemorative Address, commencing at 10:50 pm.

For more information on Kevin Major, visit http://newcomm.net/kmajor. Kevin Major’s recent history of Newfoundland and Labrador, As Near to Heaven by Sea, was nominated for the 2001 Pearson Writers’ Trust Non-Fiction Prize.

The keynote speaker for the ACA Conference is Newfoundland and Labrador poet and novelist, Michael Crummey. He is the author of several books of poetry, a short-story collection, and two novels, as well as a collaborator in a photographic-essay, Journey into a Lost Nation. Many of his works interpret historical themes and his narratives interweave archival record, memory, and a consciousness of a past lost.

Crummey was born at Buchans, a mining community in the interior of Newfoundland; his childhood and adolescence was spent there and in Wabush, a Labrador mining town. He studied at Memorial University, St. John’s, and Queen’s University, Kingston. In 1991 he taught briefly in China, an experience reflected in his early collection of short stories. He now lives in St. John’s.

Crummey published two award-winning books of poetry, Arguments with Gravity (1996) and Hard Light (1998), the latter a retelling of his father’s stories of the Newfoundland and Labrador fishery. One of his poems, “What’s Lost” speaks poignantly of the disappearance of community knowledge: “Even those [islands] too small to be found on the map/ once carried a name in someone’s mind/a splinter of local history --/a boat wrecked up in a gale of wind/the roof-wrecked remains of a stage house/ hunkered in the lee/... what’s forgotten is lost...” Some of his poetry may be found on the University of Toronto Canadian Poetry site: http://www.library.utoronto.ca/canpoetry.

Crummey’s collection of short stories, Flesh and Blood (1998), many set in a Newfoundland mining community, Hard Rock, drew upon his childhood experiences; in “Roots”, the son researches the company records and photographs at the Miner’s Museum to understand his father and the home town he had thought he had left behind him “as if it was a childhood disease.”

In 2001 Crummey published his first novel, River Thieves, which was nominated for several awards, including the Giller and the Commonwealth Prize. Set in the early 1800s on the Exploits River, Crummey explored the relationships within the Peyton household, settlers involved in the fur trade and the salmon fisheries, and, in turn, their perceptions and treatment of the Beothics. Crummey’s current novel, The Wreckage, spans several decades and continents, from the sectarian animosities of pre-war Newfoundland, to a Japanese POW camp, and returning to St. John’s in the 1990s.

Crummey’s collection of short stories, Flesh and Blood (1998), many set in a Newfoundland mining community, Hard Rock, drew upon his childhood experiences; in “Roots”, the son researches the company records and photographs at the Miner’s Museum to understand his father and the home town he had thought he had left behind him “as if it was a childhood disease.”

Currently Michael Crummey is a writer-in-residence at The Rooms, part of a collaborative project by artists and writers to create installations based on the holdings of the Provincial Art Gallery, Museum, and Archives.
St. John’s ACA Conference Theme Draws remarkable Response

The ACA’s Call for Proposals for its 2006 Conference, “Living on the Edge” – The Place of Archives in the Heritage and Cultural Community – has drawn a huge response this year as over 60 session and paper proposals were received by the 2006 ACA Programme Committee. Proposals were received from around the world, including submissions with speakers from the United States, England, Germany, Tanzania, Australia, New Zealand, The Netherlands, Wales, Ireland, Iceland, Vietnam, Zimbabwe, the Cayman Islands and France, along with many fine submissions from our own Canadian archival community.

With only 24 available timeslots on the programme, the Programme Committee has had its work cut out to determine which proposals would be accepted for inclusion in this year’s programme. The Committee met in St. John’s, Newfoundland on 27-28 January to review the proposals and begin the work of developing the programme and assigning Committee members as session liaisons. The Programme Committee has tried to create a balanced programme as possible which will have a broad appeal to ACA members. The Programme Committee is also working with our colleagues in Newfoundland to add as much Newfoundland flavour to the programme as possible.

Editorial: Between the Covers

Traditionally, Newfoundlanders and Labradoreans have relied upon oral history and song to preserve their past. More recently, this form of communication has been supplemented by the written word. Since then, this province has produced some of the finest writers and poets in the country, yet the art of the traditional Newfoundland raconteur remains an important part of our culture.

The first book of poetry written on the island is Robert Hayman’s Quodlibets (1628), composed while Hayman was governor of the colony in Bristol’s Hope (Harbour Grace). Since then, Newfoundland literature has emerged as a unique subgenre with a style of its own.

In getting to know this place, we invite you to check out our writers. As part of the ACA 2006 Annual Conference we are happy to present you with some of our best. Two of our keynote speakers, Michael Crummey and Kevin Major, are critically acclaimed writers. Their work celebrates our heritage and the unique Newfoundland and Labrador experience.

There are many more writers who will acquaint you with this place. The Local Arrangements Committee (LA) has a few recommendations to get you started. We decided to offer up some of our favourite writers - this list is not exhaustive – in fact, we limited each member of the LAC Committee to five writers (and added a couple of our own). We invite you to get to know us through our writers before you arrive for the ACA Conference.

During the Conference, LA has arranged that many of these books will be available for purchase at the conference venue.

HISTORICAL

Cassie Brown, Death on the Ice: A detailed account of the 1914 sealing disaster: 78 sealers (SS Newfoundland), left on the ice off the northeast coast for 53 hours, died in a savage blizzard in March 1914. The event inspired artist David Blackwood’s Wake of the Great Sealers.

Peter Pope, Fish into Wine: Through painstaking research that combined innovative archaeological analysis with historical research, this elegant history documents seventeenth-century Newfoundland, where the cod fishery sustained settlement. Pope is a presenter in the closing plenary.

Ruby Gough, Robert Edwards Holloway: Newfoundland educator, scientist, photographer, 1874-1904. An illustrated biography that explores the career of one of Newfoundland’s most prominent photographers. Holloway’s studio was continued (1913-46) by daughter Elsie, also an accomplished photographer.

Aboriginal Archives Promotional Booklet Project

Phase I of the project is near completion. It involved the development and printing of a hard copy version intended for use by Aboriginal communities throughout Canada. The English version was completed last year by volunteer writers from the SISAA. Both the ACA and the CCA also contributed time and resources in editing the material. The French version is almost completed.

At a meeting held on 30 December 2005, the Steering Committee (Warren Sinclair, Patricia Kennedy, Wilma MacDonald and Edward Atkinson) focused on Phase II which involves the creation of a website hosted by the ACA and a multi-media CD-ROM/DVD product (for those communities without Internet access), with a deadline for Phase II of 31 March 2006. The steering committee members concluded that a meeting with the ACA Executive Director and the Public Awareness Committee was essential to determine where responsibilities would lie for completing Phase II activities by that date.

The SISAA ListServe continues to grow in membership. There are at present 46 members.

Members of the Association of Canadian Archivists (ACA) Review and Renewal Project Committee are: Marc Lerman, Chair; Jerry O'Brien; Terry Eastwood; Sharon Larade; and Lisa Daulby.

With the assistance of Association Strategy Group (ASG), project consultants, the Steering Committee conducted in-depth interviews with a sample of members, prepared and conducted a survey of present, past, and non-members, and created a report to present research findings and recommendations. The consensus among ACA’s members and prospective members is clear: ACA needs to be more actively engaged in lobbying activities, must raise the profile of the profession among members of the public and institutions with archives, and enhance professional development. The membership is satisfied on the whole with the association’s traditional tangible offerings though there is room for improvement to increase satisfaction levels. There was widespread recognition that these kind of strategic initiatives speak to member priorities and the issues and challenges facing the sector. Advocacy, Public Relations and Outreach, and Professional Development are Review and Renewal Project strategic priorities.

ACA activities in the areas of the strategic priorities will be undertaken in concert with other associations, particularly those at the provincial/territorial level. The Committee has devised a strategy for the execution of the strategic priorities.

Advocacy
ACA monitors issues as funding, copyright, access to information, census, innovative tax incentives and cultural property, amongst others, and speaks out on the interests of all archivist in Canada. We plan to present a statement regarding the advocacy roles and responsibilities of the ACA. To set forth the principal objectives and aims of leadership in the promotion and support of the archival profession in Canada. To distinguish the position occupied by the ACA in this activity from that of other institutions and associations in the archival and heritage community. The intent is to identify the interests, needs, audiences, partners, and anticipated results.

Our document should define the basic components of the methods and approach to the advocacy function, which segments of the archival and heritage community and of Canadian society are included in its realm of activities and, who within the ACA is responsible for the administration of the advocacy function. The document will not specify procedures for the delivery of this service. The aim of the statement is to assert the ACA’s stance as an active and outward-looking member of the Canadian archival and heritage community dedicated to the promotion and advancement of its members and of the archival profession. It is the voice of archivists and the profession at the national level and speaks on their behalf to audiences across the country.

We plan to present the advocacy statement to partners and the membership during the Conference in St. John’s. Our goal is to use the statement as a starting point in building an effective advocacy program for the community. The statement will be used as a building block and input from partners will be encouraged. Consultation with others is key to design effective structural and process models. In the end, we seek to develop key messages and strategies, and produce a guide to advocacy including such topics as advice on meeting with politicians, senior government staff, and the media.

Public Relations and Outreach
Interplay Creative Media was contracted to create a communications strategy. Our purpose is to complete an assessment of the current situation, identify recommended communications objectives, design a strategy to achieve objectives using messages targeted to specific audiences conveyed through the most effective communications.
products, design an approach to measure results, and provide estimates for budgetary purposes. The hope is to develop key thematic messages and provide a guide for meeting with media and public groups.

The following communications objectives and strategy are being considered.

Inform the ACA membership, as well as other national, provincial and territorial associations and councils of its public awareness and outreach plans

Create dialogue and invite the participation of other national, provincial and territorial archival associations and councils in an integrated archival awareness campaign

Educate members on promoting the value of archives to resource allocators, within their organizations, in order to secure a much needed increase in budgets and human capital

Raise the awareness of current and prospective archive users about the role of archives and the archival profession, their importance, and how to access them.

The committee is considering the following themes. The ACA should communicate its key messages and clearly distinguish itself by communicating its unique role, within the Canadian archival community. To shape the perceptions of its strategic constituencies we will need to use an overall positioning concept. The ACA should position itself as the professional association that represents the interests of the archival profession, in matters of national importance. The ACA should also continuously promote its role in encouraging cooperation within the archival community, namely coordination and collaboration on public awareness initiatives to advance the interests of the Canadian archival system, and ultimately that of Canadians. Wherever possible, the ACA will evaluate the effectiveness of its communications programming and adjust its strategy or tactics as needed to ensure that the programming supports the association’s objectives.

We plan to present the Communications strategy to partners and the membership during the Conference in St. John’s. Our goal is to use the strategy as a starting point in building an effective communications program for the community. The strategy will be used as a building block and input from partners will be encouraged. Consultation with others is key to design effective structural and process models.

Professional Development

We are working in communicating with Provincial and Territorial councils and academic institution representatives to prepare an inventory of what professional development opportunities are available and to list the professional development needs of the community. We hope to create an Education plan in concert with partners such as Provincial/ Territorial Councils.

Tactical initiatives

Highlights of accomplishments relating to Review and Renewal Project tactical initiatives.

Financial:
Proposal to change timing for membership and fiscal year has been submitted and will be presented for membership consideration at the Annual General Meeting (AGM).

Established the ACA Foundation, a charitable foundation/trust that would collect funds to support scholarship program & research projects. Presentation on the matter will be made during AGM.

e-Archivaria:
Launched at Conference 2006. Issues 1 – 59 will be available as searchable PDF’s on the web site, with approximately the first 50 issues open to public, while the most recent issues will be reserved for subscribers and members. A searchable index will also be available to members and subscribers. In the near future the collection may also be available on CD.

Conference Operations Guide

Existing policies, procedures, and operations practices are being adjusted with the goal to maintain or reduce delegate fees. We seek to identify method and objective measures to incorporate location cost considerations (e.g. travel & hotel) and proximity to geographic concentrations of members in site selection review for future sites. We will use staff expertise in negotiation of services and rates, and achieve operational efficiencies to decrease hosting expenses. We seek to adjust practices and policies to create non-fee revenues using partner and sponsor support, advertising, and trade show income

Existing Communications Programs

Co-editors of the Bulletin, with assistance from staff and contributions from chairs and committees are working to improve consistency in delivering 6 issues per year with improved content reflecting practical and front-line developments across Canada.

The Web site is being enhanced. The public site is improved to meet 3-click maximum for content, multiple levels, outdated and highly detailed content have been removed. A Members’ only site is now available with content relevant to members’ needs and to increase functionality. e-commerce and e-payment are being developed and offered.

This past year the Review and Renewal Project Committee ensured to put in place elements necessary for execution. There is no doubt execution of tasks relating to the strategic priorities will occur during the next ACA year beginning July 1, 2006. During the Conference several presentations will be made on the matter and we will seek one on one consultation with delegates. This project’s success and relevance to ACA’s future depends on your input. Please participate in building an association worthy of the Canadian archival community.

New features on UNESCO's Archives Portal

UNESCO’s Archives Portal at www.unesco.org/webworld/portal_archives now has added an additional service through a user registration services to increase community building and enhance security.

Nearly 8,000 websites of archives and archival resources all over the world can be accessed through the Portal.

The Directory lists since more than five years websites of archives of the public and the private sector, including universities and research institutions and websites of resources related to archives and records management.

All content can be accessed by regions and countries. Visitors to the UNESCO Archives Portal can also browse through pre-established categories or search for specific words. They can add a new link or modify an already existing link.

(Continued from page 1) the site and feel free to convey comments to ACA office staff. I cannot stress enough how important it is for our members to use the ACA website to gather information and receive services. Our leadership team is committed to using the Web as our main communication tool and I invite you to visit our website regularly to witness results.

At the Conference the e-Archivaria version of our worthy publication will be launched. Teruko Kishibe, Archives Assistant, coordinated the collection of copyright permissions for this edition. If you have not responded to ACA’s appeal on this issue please do so as soon as possible. Teruko who also assisted in the records management of ACA’s records performed admirably and we owe her our sincere gratitude.

The establishment of the Municipal Archives Special Interest Group, the McGill University Student Chapter, and the University of Toronto, Faculty of Information Sciences Student Chapter is a testament to our community’s interest and commitment. Rodney Carter, Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph in Kingston, ON, has been appointed Chair, Religious Archives Special Interest Group.

ACA submitted National Archival Development Program (NADP) grant applications for the ACA Institute 2006 and for the Aboriginal Archives Guide Phase II. I thank the Bureau of Canadian Archivists (BCA) for considering these applications as priorities and thank all who participated in the NADP applications process and the NADP policies and procedures workshop led by the Canadian Council of Archives (CCA).

I served as BCA Acting General Secretary, July 2005-December 31, 2006. On January 1, 2006, Shelley Sweeney, University of Manitoba, succeeded and the BCA is delighted to have a person of Shelley’s stature in this leadership role. The management and administrative responsibility of the Copyright Committee was transferred from BCA to CCA. Please note the Copyright Committee also serves as ACA’s and L’Association des Archivistes du Québec (AAQ) representative for all copyright advocacy issues.

It is difficult to put into words the marvelous contributions of ACA’s leadership team. Each and every member of the Board, committee chairs, and SIS chairs has supported ACA’s agenda with conviction and commitment. I experienced my Presidency in an environment of good will and collegiality. We are indebted to all who served as volunteers on our committees, interest groups, and consultation bodies.

It should never be forgotten that our achievements during my term could not have happened without the expertise of Duncan Grant and Judy Laird. Their diligence, dedication to our cause, and outstanding performance is a source of inspiration.

As is my tradition, I ask you to consider participating in the good works of ACA. Please feel free to volunteer or, at the very least, offer comment and thoughts on our services. Our leadership team, Executive Director and office staff can only render an effective service in the long run if our members and the archival community participate in the process of building an Association effectively responding to your needs.
