NUNAVUT GENEALOGY

Genealogy is the study of one's family's history and peoples’ lineages. As Nunavut genealogy is identified as part of the research, the names and names spellings from each other. Inuit family histories gathered from interviews and archives. Details included births, adoptions, marriages, deaths and settlements. The study of Inuit Migration recorded the oral traditions of Qaumajuq who starved to death in 1947. The program was encouraged by Family Relations and Genealogy Workshop. The program was encouraged by the Elder Program Strategy 2010-2014. Elders work together the Department of Culture, encouraged by the Elder Program Strategy 2010-2014. Elders work together to record family histories from 15 community workshops were assembled into Inuktut for distribution across Nunavut. The program was encouraged by the Elder Program Strategy 2010-2014. Elders worked together to record family histories from 15 community workshops were assembled into Inuktut for distribution across Nunavut. The program was encouraged by the Elder Program Strategy 2010-2014. Elders worked together to record family histories from 15 community workshops were assembled into Inuktut for distribution across Nunavut.